

Nordic Baltic Network of Philosophy of Medicine, Annual Workshop

Issues in Bioethics and Philosophy of Medicine

University of Bergen, Norway, Kalfarveien 31

6 June 2017

10:45-11:00 Coffee and tea

11:00-11:15 Welcome

11:15-11:45 The Distinction between Communication and Conversation in Healthcare, Ģirts Jankovskis, Riga Stradins University

11:45-12:15 Narrative and human suffering, Rolf Ahlzén, Sweden

12:15-13:00 Lunch

13:00-13:30 What computers can't do - in medicine Henrik Vogt, Norwegian University of Science and Technology

13:30-14:00 Antimicrobial resistance from the perspective of postnormal science, Knut Erik Emberland, University of Bergen

14:00-14:30 Existential arguments in Habermas's Critique of Liberal Eugenics Vilhjalmur Arnason, University of Iceland

14:30-15:00 Medium Range Narratives Petra Gelhaus, Psychiatric Clinics Motala/Mjölby, Sweden

15:00-15:15 Coffee and tea

15:15-15:45 The creation and development of the population biobank in Estonia: a field-analytical approach, Külliki Seppel University of Tartu

15:45-16:15 Teaching ethics - how and to what effect? Kadri Simm

16:15-16:45 Hello, EBM, how are you doing? Pekka Louhiala University of Helsinki, Finland

16:45-17:00 Light refreshments

17:00-17:30 Stigma and Vulnerability: Justification of Antimicrobial Resistance (AMR) Screening among Refugees in Europe, Alena Kamenschikova, University of Tartu

17:30-18:00 The question of medicalization: histories, problems, and empowerment Jonathan Sholl, Aarhus University

18:00-18:30 Human dignity and futile medical care: the tendencies of health professionals' perceptions in Lithuania, Peicius Eimantas, Lithuanian University of Health Sciences

Workshop dinner will be at 20:00 in Jacob Kjødes vei 22, which 25 minutes from the city center by tram. Map and instructions will be provided at the workshop.