

Nordic-Baltic Network for Philosophy of Medicine
Annual Workshop, Reykjavík, June 10th, 2024

Location:
University of Iceland, Gimli 139

Program

8:30–9:00: Coffee+welcome

Session I: 9:00–10:00

9–9:30

Svanur Sigurbjörnsson (University of Iceland. Joint work with Kristján Kristjánsson (University of Birmingham) and Vilhjálmur Árnason, University of Iceland)

Views on character strengths of the ideal good doctor: A survey among medical students and doctors in Iceland. A conceptual basis for character education of doctors

9:30–10:00

Arnrún Halla Arnórsdóttir (University of Akureyri, Iceland)

Applied Empathy – On the practical use of empathy as a professional communication skill when caring for people with dementia

10:00–10:30: Coffee break

Session II: 10:30–11:30

10:30–11:00

Garðar Árnason (University of Akureyri, Iceland)

Are embryo models artificial or synthetic? Some thoughts on ethico-ontological aspects of embryo model research

11:00–11:30

Kadri Simm and Külliki Seppel (University of Tartu, Estonia)

From „ensuring normality around birth“ to „commercial ranting“ – stakeholder ethical reasoning in prenatal screening

11:30–13:00: Lunch break: Eiríksdóttir Grósku

Session III: 13:00–14:00

13:00–13:30

Nanna Hlín Halldórsdóttir (University of Iceland, Centre for Ethics)

Fatigue with or without energy? A phenomenological exploration of different perspectives on fatigue among ME/CFS patients in Iceland

13:30–14:00

Ástríður Stefánsdóttir and Kristín Björnsdóttir (University of Iceland)

Triage during Covid-19 as a source of fear among disabled people in Iceland

Session IV: 14:05–15:05

14:05–14:35

Jay Zameska (Jagiellonian University, Poland)

Who's afraid of better health? A moderate defense of appeals to emotion in public health communication

14:35–15:05

Külliki Seppel and Karoliina Kruusmaa (University of Tartu, Estonia)

Public communication of the Estonian personalised medicine programme

15:05–15:30: Coffee break

Session V: 15:30–17:00

15:30–16:00

Svava Sigurðardóttir (University of Iceland)

Personalized medicine and relational bioethics

16:00–16:30

Vilius Dranseika (Jagiellonian University, Poland. Joint work with Piotr Bystranowski & Tomasz Żuradzki)

What Does Bioethics Engage With? A Case Study in Citation Analysis

16:30–17:00

Emmi Kaaya (University of Tartu, Estonia)

European Health Data Space and Secondary Use of Health Data – A Breach of Medical Confidentiality?

Final reflections

17:00–17:15

Vilhjálmur Árnason (University of Iceland)

18:00 Dinner

Ráðagerði, restaurant